

Dear Mr. Tanveer:

I plead guilty for not knowing about the sites that you have named, wherein you have obtained the “solid proof” that I asked for, and you have unilaterally concluded that the American society is perverted. I believe you when you say that those sites may have been owned and operated by Americans. However, that is not enough to condemn a whole society as perverted, in my opinion. I gather from your writings that you really do not have any first hand knowledge of the American or western societies, for which I do not blame you. However, I would request you to calmly consider the real facts before rushing to any generalization regarding an entire society consisting of 285 million people. The USA is a relatively conservative nation when compared to the other western countries. It is established that the percentage of the population that goes to the Churches, is higher than among all other western countries.

I will detract for a moment just to let you know that most people do not want to leave their ancestral home and migrate to another land, unless they are compelled to do so. You will recognize that atrocities of untold dimensions have been perpetrated upon the Hindus of Bangladesh, wherein the wives, daughters and sisters of many Hindu men have been treated by your Muslim (NOT ALL) brethren, in precisely the way you defined “pervertism”. I do not consider all Bangladeshi people to be perverted, when such large scale atrocities have been carried out on innocent Hindu women, especially who lived alongside you and your people of thousands of years. Despite the fact that I have a far stronger moral ground to label the Bangladeshi society to be perverted, given the degree and the frequency with which such mass scale rape and molestation took place, especially in clear view of the government and all the people, whom we call “aam jonota”, I have not made that generalization. I am amazed at your insensitivity where you basically call the Hindus for being cowards, and not resisting their ethnic cleansing, under circumstances where the Hindus have been outnumbered by a ratio of 1 to 10. On the other hand, you barely could name me a couple of web sites and from that conclude that the American society is perverted. Tell me, if your arguments are juvenile or not? You have made silly statements like the ones below, some of which I quote directly:

“do you know how many American gals do get raped by their own father and boys by their own mother?”

“Most American kids are deprived from the warmth of family relations and parental love and care as we have in our subcontinent families, as from childhood they grow up watching their drunk dad and mom fighting with each other and then getting divorced. They don't develop many humanistic feelings of care and tenderness. That's why, every other day there is an incident of open shoot-outs by kids in American schools. See these 1,35,000 US soldiers in Iraq are all American citizens. They represent America...their mentality”

“You might have to check out in every American house too look for who is fucking whose daughter or who is swapping whose wife with whom, but for many people around the world don't need to do that”

“With all the respect to your mother I can say that I am sure that you are sure. Cause she is an Indian woman. Is an American guy sure about his father? Ask them in secret. They are not, cause their mom and dad fucks around. How can a person be happy in life when he is not sure that if he is a bastard or what? If infidelity is a pervertism, then most of the Americans are perverts. Look at the American society. So many divorces, so many broken families, so many identityless children walking on the streets. How can this nation be happy, it's sick. Isn't India or Bangladesh better than that at least? I don't know if you cheat on your wife. But all those who cheat their wives or lovers, I ask them, do you feel gratified in the aftermath?”

When you make statements like this, you simply show that you are an ignorant individual, and it is basically a waste of my time engaging in this futile discussion. Well, Mr. Tanveer, all the stuff you wrote is an indication of a sick and perverted mind, and I am sure the readers here would see you for what you are.

See, claiming to be an atheist does not make one such. Every sentence of your post had a foul stench, and it was what we call the “islamist” stench. No matter how much you pretend to be a “non-fundie”, your inner feelings are so easy to discern. You know Mr. Tanveer, growing up in Bangladesh, surrounded by all the violence and hatred that has filtered through your system, it is hard for you to even express your feelings without citing some filthy experience of some graphic image, which most common people can not relate to. I leave you with this suggestion that you might soon need medical attention at some sanitarium. I am not sure that Bangladesh has the facilities for such treatment; perhaps a brief visit to Guantanamo Bay would cure you of all your perverted illusions and wet dreams.

Bishnu Dey